He Used the Wrong Word.

A well-dressed young man was on board the last train and a tough looking customer got on and took the seat of the unfolding young man. He had just begun to read a copy of the Christian Advocate when a benevolent looking gentleman who had been sitting opposite him leaned over and gave him a tap on the knee. The young man looked over the top of his paper and the benevolent gentleman said in a low tone: "Excuse me, but I think you have dropped your pocket-book."

The young man put down his paper, felt hastily in his pocket, looked at the tough, who was grinning, and said: "I don't see my pocket-book."

"Why, I thought you dropped it," said the benevolent gentleman, looking puzzled.

"Oh, no," said the young man, "I only lost my religion."

The benevolent gentleman coughed behind his hand, and the tough looked out of the window.

Two accident sent, for the reason that the company would not take their back the amount of their wages withheld during the strike. It was soon that the company had granted to the strikers' demands, but such was not the case. A part of a conference was effected, however. The men decided to work with the understanding that the matter of the discharge of the engineers and firemen should be left to the Executive Committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which is now in session at Detroit, and that the company should not employ any new men in the places of the strikers until the Executive Committee had acted upon the matter. This was accepted by the company, and the men returned to work. The engineers and firemen who struck will be taken back as fast as vacancies occur, and the company will not employ any new men in their places. The men will receive their back pay as soon as the pay-rolls can be made out, which will be in about ten days. The company has also agreed to restore the old rate of wages, which was reduced ten per cent on the 1st of January. The men will receive their back pay for the time they were on a strike.
